Parish Council Tells Governor to Return to Normal

Livingston Says Enough!

Central Mayor Says He Won't Ask JBE to Lift Shutdown Order Or Masking Mandate

Woody Jenkins
 Editor

LIVINGSTON - Members of the Livingston Parish Council have unanimously petitioned Gov. John Bel Edwards to lift the restrictions being imposed by him on businesses in the parish. In the petition, the councilmen said they did not object to social distancing or the use of protective equipment where businesses chose to require them. However, the Council said in a two-page letter that businesses must be allowed to fully open and do business within their normal business hours. The petition said the governor's mandates are creating epic hardships and adversity for business owners, property owners, religious leaders, and residents generally. The Council said Gov. John Bel Edwards' restrictions are "crippling our economy and paralyzing our businesses."

Meanwhile, Central Mayor David Barrow said he has no current plans to ask Gov. Edwards to remove the City of Central from his mandates. The mayor expressed concerns with some of the mandates such as no live music in bars. However, it said it would be difficult for Central to go it alone. He said he wants to wait to see what action is taken by the legislature during the current session and whether it ends the shutdown or affects the governor's authority.

He would want to talk to other mayors in the area to get their take on the situation, he said.

Sentiments in Livingston against the shutdown and masks seemed apparent at the memorial service for Remy Hidalgo in Yellow Jacket Stadium. Of more than 1,200 people, only about 20 wore masks.

Mayor David Barrow Outlines Plans for New Central City Hall on Hooper Road

Plan Would Connect Two Shopping Areas, Create City Center Around New City Hall

Woody Jenkins
Editor

CENTRAL — Central Mayor David Barrow says acreage northwest of the corner of Hooper and Sullivan roads will begin to look a lot different over the next 18 months, as the city begins construction of a new city hall and works with owners of two shopping centers to create a city center.

Barrow says $1.6 million is now in place to build a new city hall on property owned by Newell Whitney next to the current city hall at 13421 Hooper Road, Suite 8, Central, LA 70818. Funding is largely thanks to Sen. Bodi White, who worked for years to include the project in the capital layout program, Barrow said.

The city is now working on a purchase agreement for 4.5 acres of land for city hall at a cost of about $700,000. The sale should close by the end of the year, the mayor said.

Another $250,000 is available for building and improving parking.

He expects design work on city hall to be complete by the spring of 2021. The building will be 4,800 to 5,000 square feet and include room for the mayor's office and council chamber. Construction itself should take about nine months, and Barrow expects completion by late 2021 or early 2022.

Mayor Barrow said the new city hall will be set with pine trees in the background, creating a green environment. He said Snappy Jacobs, who represents the Eaton family which owns the Central Shopping Center at Hooper and Sullivan, has agreed to give the development a facelift, as has Newell Whitney at the shopping center where city hall is now located.

Barrow said he would like to see the kind of improvements that the Sumich family has made at the Oak Pointe shopping center on Greenwell Springs Road at Sullivan.

Barrow is excited that Snappy Jacobs has also agreed to construction of a driveway linking the two shopping centers.

"This is how we can begin to see the development of a city center focused around city hall," he said.

The city center will include city hall and perhaps the Central City Service Center. The Central Police Station would stay where it is, as would the U.S. Post Office. The main Central Fire Station is across Sullivan Road, and Jackson Park is nearby, he said.

The widening of Hooper Road was funded through the MoveBR program nearly two years ago. Voters were told the Hooper Road projects would be one of the first built because the need was great and the project had already been designed.

The widening of Hooper will include covering open ditches and adding sidewalks and curbs. These improvements will enhance the entrance to Central's new city hall, Barrow said. The mayor cited other changes that could affect property in the city center:

- Construction of a round-about at the corner of Hooper and Sullivan roads will probably intrude on the vacant lot on the northwest corner of the two roads, taking about 1/3rd of that lot.
  - The future of the old pizza building next to Hancock Bank is uncertain.
  - The Circle K could be affected by the widening of Hooper, which could intrude on land where gas pumps are and make the site less desirable for a convenience store.
- Barrow said the next two years will be exciting to watch.

City Judge Chris Hester Seeking Seat On State 1st Circuit Court of Appeal

BATON ROUGE — Baton Rouge City Judge Chris Hester has announced his candidacy for the First Circuit Court of Appeal in the Nov. 3 election. He was elected city judge in November 2018.

Hester said he feels his experience handling civil and criminal matters, including traffic, small claims, and evictions, from the City Court bench has given him an understanding of the root issues of many problems facing our community. Before becoming judge, Chris spent the majority of his career working as an assistant district attorney with the East Baton Rouge Parish District Attorney's Office.

He previously served as section chief of a trial section and held the positions of chief homicide prosecutor and section chief of the Violent Crimes Unit. He handled thousands of cases from misdemeanors to murders over a nine-year period.

Hester earned the endorsement of East Baton Rouge Parish District Attorney Hillar C. Moore, III, former East Baton Rouge Parish District Attorney Doug Moreau, the Louisiana Association of Business & Industry, the Baton Rouge Area Chamber FuturePAC, Baton Rouge Union of Police, and the Baton Rouge Association of Firefighters.

As the chief homicide prosecutor, Chris saw the biggest challenges — habitual offenders in the criminal justice system. He recognizes that these violent crime offenders often start with a misdemeanor handled in Baton Rouge City Court or District Court. He believes this experience combined with his time as a City Court judge has cultivated Chris' passion for solving serious issues that plague our community and prepared him to run for Court of Appeal.

Judge Hester said he is committed to bringing a firm but fair perspective, tireless work ethic, and extensive courtroom experience to this important position as he seeks to build a better Louisiana. He said he understands the real impact crime has on our parish, but he knows the difference an effective justice system can make when committed to serving the people. The safety and security of East Baton Rouge Parish families will always be his top priority, he said.

"We need experienced judges who have handled cases from both sides of the bench who are ready to go from day one. The stakes are simply too high at this level of our judicial system," Hester said. "Judges need to be proven, fair and trustworthy. I'm the only candidate with judicial experience in this race and I've spent my career in the courtroom."

Chris was born and raised in Baton Rouge. He is a graduate of Catholic High School, LSU, and LSU Law School. Chris is a life-long conservative Republican. Before joining the EBRDA Office, Chris began his law career at Watson, Blanche, Wilson and Posner, a law firm practicing primarily in the area of medical malpractice defense.

Chris is active in the community as the head coach of the 8th grade basketball team at St. Aloysius Catholic School, Baton Rouge and Louisiana State Bar Associations, and a committee member at First United Methodist Church. He is married to Emily Burris Hester, and they have two young children.

Hester said he hopes to transition his role from City Court to the First Circuit Court of Appeal, while still continuing to seek justice for the people of East Baton Rouge Parish.

Random Thoughts from Editor's Desk

Editor

BATON ROUGE — As I work at my desk, I write down random thoughts on a wide variety of topics. Here are a few this week:

On Covid

- Did you know the average life expectancy in Louisiana is 75, while the average age of Covid deaths in Louisiana is 75?

While Watching the Debate

- Did I understand Joe Biden to say he wants a psychiatrist on every police call?

- Rolling through my head: "You have the right to remain silent. Anything you say can and will be used against you. Are you okay with the psychiatrist we brought? If not, tell me and I'll get you another one!"

- Democratic Activists: Remember all your policy debates, protests, and even violent rampages over control of your patty? Well, you just lost the election! "I am the Democratic Party now!" — Joe Biden

- Ok, Sleepy Joe, do you support packing the Supreme Court? "I won't answer that, it may become an issue!"

On Parenting

- "Remember, we are not raising children; we are raising adults!"

On Satsumas

- The satsumas are mighty good this year. Both sweet and tart at the same time!

From One Farmer to Another

- When you raise chickens for eggs or bees for honey, don't think you'll come out!

Gov. Mike Foster (1996-2004) Has Passed Away

Gov. Mike Foster: The Peoples' Governor

Mike Foster Ran Because He Saw State Government As a Disaster and No One Else Was Stepping Up

Woody Jenkins • Editor • Central City News

Gov. Mike Foster • Man of the People

BATON ROUGE — Former Gov. Mike Foster passed away Sunday at his home, Oaklawn Manor, in Franklin. With his passing, Louisiana lost its best governor since the mid-1950's, and I lost a dear friend.

Mike Foster never worried much about polls or getting reelected, but doing the right thing for the people of the state seemed always to be his primary goal.

I first heard of Mike Foster in 1987 when he was running against my friend Sen. Tony Guarisco, whom I had served with on the Bill of Rights Committee of the Louisiana Constitutional Convention of 1973. Although Tony was a staunch liberal, he was an honest man who had a deep respect for individual rights. Unfortunately for him, he was far too liberal for his

“Mike Foster was ‘a blue collar millionaire,’ a very successful businessman who was also a plain-talking man of the people. He had no airs or pretense. He was just an ordinary person who was fed up with the direction of government.”

Senate district, which included St. Mary Parish. Mike was angry with Guarisco because of his support for trial lawyer legislation and the difficulty he had reaching him on the phone. Using mostly his own money, Mike won the Senate seat with 64 percent of the vote.

When Mike Foster arrived at the State Capitol in 1988 as a 58-year-old freshman senator, I was only 40 but had 15 years' experience in the Louisiana House.

When I first met Mike, I pegged him as “a blue collar millionaire,” a very successful businessman who was also a plain-talking man of the people. He had no airs or pretense. He was just an ordinary person who was fed up with the direction of government. I never changed that opinion.

In the Senate, Mike Foster was relatively quiet his four years and did not generate much controversy. He was learning the ropes. I didn't hear much about him. But when he began his second term in 1992, he became to take on bigger causes. On numerous occasions, he walked over to the House Chamber to get my opinion on a bill or lobby me for his latest cause.

He told me stories about his grandfather, Murphy J. Foster, who served as governor during the 1890's and who was best known for ending the Louisiana Lottery, the scandal-ridden gambling enterprise which funded corruption in Louisiana politics for the last quarter of the 19th Century.

Ironically, during Sen. Mike Foster's second term in the state Senate, there was another member of the legislature with ties to Gov. Murphy Foster. His name was Rep. Steve Gunn, the only Independent member of the House or Senate. Steve's grandfather was a member of the Louisiana House in the 1890's when the first Gov. Foster repealed the Louisiana Lottery. In fact, Rep. Gunn's grandfather played a pivotal role in the repeal.

Supporters of the Louisiana Lottery were paying legislators $30,000 to vote to keep the lottery's corrupt franchise in place. Rep. Gunn's grandfather had been offered that amount, and he was enraged that such people had Louisiana by the throat. When the roll was called on passage of the bill, the House was meeting in the House Chamber of the Old State Capitol, where Louisiana had voted to secede in 1861

“During debate on repealing the motorcycle helmet law, Mike asked me to emphasize that research shows the benefits from wearing a helmet outweigh the risks only at speeds under 20 mph, because the weigh of the helmet causes more deaths from whiplash above that speed. Rep. V.J. ‘Safety First’ Bella asked me at the mic, ‘Then why do football players wear helmets?’ Mike leaned over and whispered to me, ‘Tell him football players all travel at under 20 mph!’ I answered V. J. just as instructed. The House members had a big laugh, and we passed the bill to repeal the mandatory helmet law!”

and where Gov. Huey Long was impeached in 1928.

When Rep. Gunn's grandfather name was called, he leaped atop his desk and shouted at the top of his lungs, “No!”

No wonder Steve Gunn was an Independent! Rep. Gunn told that story to Sen. Mike Foster while the three of us were working on a constitutional amendment in 1995. Mike never liked taxes, and the proposed amendment was right down his ally.

Under the Louisiana Constitution, a tax increase required a two-thirds' vote of both the House and the Senate. However, the courts had ruled that a “fee” could be increased by a simple majority of each house. As a result, most bills coming before the legislature to raise revenue were dubbed “fees” that required a simple majority vote to pass.

Our idea was to require the same vote to approve a fee increase as to pass a tax increase — a two thirds' of both houses! The proposal was controversial and drew great opposition from those who make their living foisting tax or fee increases on the unsuspecting public. Never-

“He said, “Woody, I have some money, but it would take everything I have to fund this campaign, I can't do that to my family.” I said, “Mike, I know how you can win this thing with very little money.” How? he asked. I had been thinking about a path to victory for Mike Foster. It involved what seemed perfectly clear to me but to virtually no one else in the political world. The key was to get in the runoff with Congressman Cleo Fields, and the secret to doing that was newspapers!”

theless, we won a two-thirds of both houses and when the constitutional amendment when before the voters on Oct. 21, 1995, it passed state-wide.

That section of the Constitution came up this year when LSU wanted the legislature to give it authority to pass tuition increases without legislative approval. No, no, the Constitution says it takes a two-thirds' vote of both houses to raise fees, thanks to Mike Foster and Steve Gunn! The legislature rejected their proposal.

October 21, 1995 was also the date Sen. Mike Foster clinched the governorship.

I had followed Sen. Foster's voting record during his second term in the State Senate and knew he was a good conservative, although not 100 percent. In fact, he had a strong libertarian streak. His fight to repeal Louisiana's mandatory helmet law for motorcyclists was proof of that.

Mike Foster was an ardent motorcyclist, and

Long Summer, Covid Gave Central More Prep Time Than Ever

Woody Jenkins

Editor

CENTRAL - After a disappointing scrimmage before the regular season began, the Central Wildcats have played superb football in their first two games of the regular season. They beat Belaire 59-6 and Southern Lab 47-7.

Is Coach Sid Edwards ready to declare that Central has a powerhouse offense this year? “Well, not yet,” he said with a smile, “but we’ve played really well so far on both sides of the ball.”

Indeed they have! Before the Belaire game, Coach Sid he was impressed with the numbers this year. The Wildcats are large — the largest number of players in over a decade, 87 on the varsity and 60 on the freshman team. In addition, the team is physically large and powerful. Why is Central coming on so strong this year? Coach Sid thinks it may have a lot to do with Covid. There was no spring training, which left the men eager to get ready. They started working in the gym on June 10 and basically haven’t let up since then. Normally, they would have played the jamboree the last week of August and the first regular season game the next week. But of course that didn’t happen. As a result, they continued to work out and got even bigger and stronger. Plus with no games in September, they are getting close to district play with no serious injuries.

The season so far has been anything but typical. The Wildcats started play last Thursday against Belaire. The game was played on Thursday because of a shortage of referees due to Covid. This week’s game was even more unusual. Because of the impending hurricane, the Wildcats hosted Southern Lab on a Wednesday night, which may be a first for Central High football.

In analyzing play so far, Coach Sid said, “The ball has been spread around. No one guy has dominated play or carried us. We’ve been impressive on offense. Running backs Pierce Patterson and Cameron Brown have done particularly well.”

“Our junior quarterback Jonathan Swift has really stepped up. Jonathan has two years of varsity play as a running back and did very well. He’s probably rushed for 1,500 yards the past two years. But now he’s stepped in as quarterback and he brings a lot of talent. I’m impressed by Jonathan. He’s a wonderful young man. Not a mark against him. He takes academics seriously, and he’s a workhorse.”

“We didn’t throw much against Southern Lab, we didn’t have to. The defense played very well and kept them in check all night.”

Coach Sid noted that one freshman is starting — center Andrew Richard, a young man to watch.

Next week, Central travels to Plaquemine, hopefully on Friday night.

Eleanor Walker Is 100 Years Young

Eleanor Mondart Walker turns 100 and celebrates with family and friends.

CENTRAL — Family and close friends gathered Saturday, Sept. 26 at Kristenwood Catering in Central to celebrate a milestone birthday for Eleanor “Buddy” Mondart Walker.

Eleanor was born Sept. 26, 1920 in Magnolia, Louisiana, later known as Greenwell Springs. She has been a loving wife, mother, grandmother, aunt, and friend for now over 100 years.

Her parents were Haney Guy and Mattie Forbes Mondart. She is the oldest of four sisters, who were her best friends. Thelma Tridico Bush, Lou Digirolamo, and Gayle Passman. She had one son, Charles Roberts, four grandchildren, eight great-grandchildren, and numerous nieces and nephews whom she loves dearly. She is a member of Greenwell Springs Baptist Church in Central.

Eleanor graduated from the LPN program at Baton Rouge Vo Tech and worked at Baton Rouge General Hospital and Dixon Memorial Hospital for many years. She loved nursing.

In fact, although she didn't mind country living, she recalls leaving the house one morning after helping to cut corn, which she hated with a passion, to go on an interview at the Baton Rouge General. The gentleman told her she had the job and could she come to work that day. She said “yes” and promptly went home to tell her sisters they would have to finish cutting corn because she was going to work. They didn't believe her and were so mad when she left for work a few minutes later with a big smile on her face.

This week, she shared some observations. Of all the inventions in her lifetime, she said electricity was the most important one because once they got it, they could do all kinds of things. It really opened their world.

Growing up, she had friends at school but her best friends were her sisters. She recalled the bus driver Boon Morgan would drop them off in the afternoon from school and they would run change clothes so they could walk over to her grandmother's house who always had fresh cookies in the safe. She was usually just finishing milking the cow and would squirt them when they tried to get a taste.

Even though they rode the bus to school, when they were young most of their trips to town were in a wagon. She can recall crossing the Comite River one night coming home when it was raining. Her dad had to get out and help the horses pull the wagon out of the mud. By the time they got home they were all cold and wet. Her mom got them all fresh clothes and then took some irons that she had warmed by the fire, wrapped them up and put them at their feet in the bed to help warm them up.

When asked who influenced her the most, she said it would have to be her mother. She was her mother, her friend, and her confidant — she was everything to her! She recalls her mother being strong in her faith and made sure they went to church on Sundays.

Her mother gave her the advice she feels was the most important in her life. She said not worry about anything, to help the things you could help and leave the rest alone. It was ok to “be concerned”, but just let God take care of things, and besides that, worrying gave you wrinkles! She also taught her and her three sisters to love each other all the time no matter what, that love was the most important thing that anyone could share with you.

The most memorable time in her life was when her son Charles was born. He was her heart, she loved him so much. He was a good kid, and her sisters loved spoiling him. She divorced his dad while he was still young. Later she went back to school to get her nursing degree so she could support them and later put him through college. She remembers it was tough, but worth it all when he graduated from LSU in Petroleum Engineering. She was so proud!

She said no marriage was perfect, but God needed to be a part of the marriage and a real part of your life. She is a member of Greenwell Springs Baptist Church, where her sister Lou was the secretary for over 35 years.

God blessed Buddy so much over the years, but also gave her peace through tough times, like when she lost her son Charles when he was only 48. She said no matter how tired she is at night, the last thing she does before she goes to bed is read her Bible and say her prayers. She feels it's the least she can do after all He has done for her.

When it comes to things that are hard to believe, she said she really doesn't understand “that Facebook thing” or calling people on the computer. She went on to say she can still recall when the man walked on the moon. It didn't seem like it was real either.

She and her sisters were visiting at her sister's house with her mom, her great-grandmother who they called Dommie, and some of their kids. She recalls the milkman came in and asked if it had happened yet. Dommie was just talking when Lou asked her to be quiet and watch the TV, to which she replied, “Well Lou, what is the occasion?” Lou told her the man was fixing to walk on the moon. Well, just like that before anyone could blink, Dommie slapped Lou on the leg as hard as she could and said, “Do you think I'm a damn fool?” Of course, it was even more shocking since Lou had on walking shorts that day, they all felt that slap!

She enjoys watching Steve Harvey in the evening and keeps up with the news, but her all-time favorites are Westerns. She's seen them all and doesn't mind watching them over and over. She loves all kinds of music. They used to listen to it on their Victrola growing up. She is especially partial to anything that makes you want to tap your foot and move around a bit. She loved to go dancing when she was younger. Of course, “younger” is a relative term at 100!

Her favorite foods include hot buttered corn bread, fresh corn, sweet potatoes, most fresh vegetables, and a fresh pan of biscuits with tomato gravy. She loves anything sweet, but her favorite would have to be her daughter-in-law Totsie's homemade divinity. But really anything Totsie makes she said is delicious.

She said she doesn't have any big regrets in life. She knows we would all make a few decisions differently if we could, but all in all she feels she's had a good life, been very blessed and loved by many.

She's grateful that God has given her a clear mind and a strong spirit. She looks forward to one day reuniting with her family in heaven. Her sister Lou told her after her 90th birthday that if she wasn't careful, we were going to have to hire people to come to her funeral because her friends would be dead.

She said now that she's 100 she's wondering if Lou was right!

Legislature Learned How Governor Has Persecuted Rev. Spell, Church in Central

Legislators Appalled 8 Church Members Fired from Their Jobs For Attending Church

Rev. Spell tried to speak in favor of the bill but was only given five minutes to recount seven months of persecution. In the time given, he testified about his being threatened with arrest for holding church, arrested, imprisoned, fitted with an ankle bracklet, ordered to home confinement, held in contempt, and ordered not to go to the church or preach. Six surveillance cameras were placed around the church and his residence, he and church members were followed, and law enforcement went through the parking lot recording license numbers of church members.

Most disturbing to legislators was the testimony of church members. See LEGISLATORS on Page 18

Keith Mayers testified that he was terminated by Georgia Pacific because he attended Life Tabernacle.

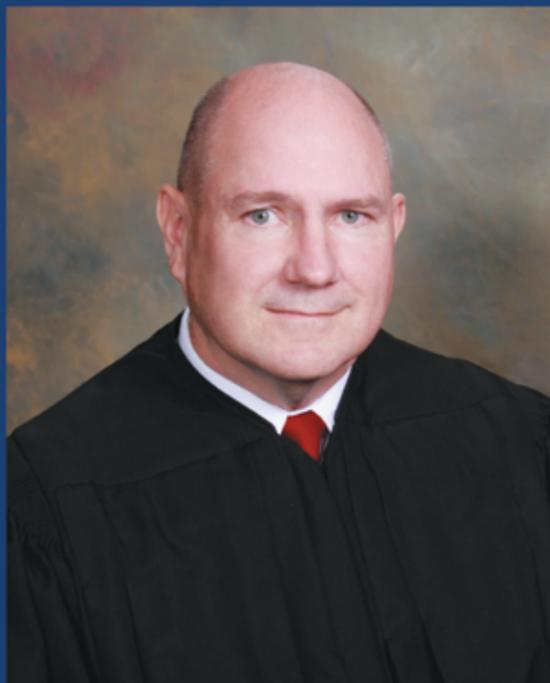

Lacie Ranges said she was terminated from her job at East Louisiana State Hospital when she refused to stop going to Life Tabernacle.

Jacob McMorris said he was a certified deputy Fire Marshal but was terminated because of his affiliation with Life Tabernacle Church in Central.

bers that they had been fired from their jobs for attending Life Tabernacle. Eight members have reported they were terminated. Five were present at the hearing, and three testified for three minutes each. The meeting was held by the House Committee on Administration of Criminal Justice at the Capitol. The subject of the hearing was HB9 by Rep Danny McCormick. It would prohibit any criminal or civil penalties being assessed against a pastor for violating the governor's emergency orders.

Rev. Spell has so far been the only person in the state arrested for violating the governor's orders. After about 30 minutes hearing witnesses, Rep. Alan Seabaugh moved to report the bill favorably. The motion passed 6-3. The vote was a surprise because Rep. Denise Marcelle (D) joined Republicans in supporting the bill. It now goes to the House floor where it is expected to pass. However, its fate in the Senate is unknown. Citizens should express their feelings to Senators.

Rep. Denise Marcelle surprised many by voting for HB9

Rep. McCormick said passion of the bill was a huge victory for religious liberty in Louisiana.

Gov. Foster Was a Man of the People

he absolutely hated wearing a helmet. In fact, in typical blue collar fashion, he generally hated being told what to do about anything “for your own good.” Year after year, I worked with Mike to repeal the helmet bill, and we were successful.

Our nemesis on such legislation was Rep. V. J. “Safety First” Bella, who was later State Fire Marshal. He loved the helmet law and fought us every step of the way.

His way of convincing legislators to support his helmet bill was to place a head of lettuce on the podium in the House chamber. He would say, “Look at this!” and slam a machete through a head of lettuce, cutting it in two. Then he would place a head of lettuce inside a football helmet and slam the machete onto the helmet, causing no damage to the lettuce. “You see, helmets work!” he said.

Meanwhile, Sen. Mike Foster, Rep. Steve Gunn, and I were arguing that it was an issue of liberty. People have the right to take risks in life. We also argued that the science was largely against helmets. Why? Research showed that helmets provide real protection only when the motorcycle driver is traveling under 20 mph. However, helmets actually cause more deaths and injuries than not wearing a helmet at speeds over 20 mph. How so? The weight of the helmet causes the neck to whiplash, resulting in deadly or life altering injuries at a greater rate than damage caused to the skull when it is unprotected by a helmet.

During one of our debates, the data on the danger of wearing a helmet was getting through to House members, and Rep. Bella was worried. In a question to me at the mic, he said, “Mr. Jenkins, you say helmets are dangerous at speeds over 20 mph. Then why do football players wear helmets?” Mike was standing next to me near the podium. He leaned over and whispered, “Tell him football players all travel under 20 miles an hour. So they need a helmet!” I told V. J. that from the mic. It got a big laugh from House members, and we passed the bill to make the wearing of motorcycle helmets voluntary.

The wearing of motorcycle helmets was voluntary most of the time Foster was governor, although the helmet law was reimposed after he left office in 2004.

One day in May 1995 during the regular legislative session, Sen. Mike Foster walked over to the House side and sat down next to me. His gubernatorial campaign was going nowhere. He said he was at 2 percent in the polls and was having trouble getting endorsements. In fact, he said he didn’t have the support of even a single member of the House or Senate. He asked if I would consider endorsing him. Without hesitation, I agreed. “Can we have a news conference to announce it?” he asked. I said yes, we could have it at my home on North Foster Drive.

On the day of the announcement, Mike pulled up to our home, and he was shocked. More than 100 people came, packing the living room. Better still, all of the major news media from Baton Rouge and New Orleans were set up in the room. I introduced Mike and he spoke. He did a great job, and the news story went statewide.

Ironically, I ended up being the only legislator in the state who endorsed him for governor until the final days before the runoff.

After the news conference was over and everyone had left, he lingered. “What is the name of this street?” he asked. I said, “North Foster Drive, Foster — it’s named after your grandfather!” “Ohhhh!” he said, “I had no idea!”

We sat down to talk about the campaign. He said, “Woody, I have some money, but it would take everything I have to fund this campaign, I can’t do that to my family.” I said, “Mike, I know how you can win this thing with very little money.” How? he asked.

I had been thinking about a path to victory for Mike Foster. It involved what seemed perfectly clear to me but to virtually no one else in the political world.

The key was to get in the runoff with Congressman Cleo Fields.

The secret to victory was newspapers.

I said, “Everyone will buy TV time. It is ridiculously expensive, and the airwaves will be jammed. You can spend a fortune and still get almost no attention. The key is newspapers. People say newspapers are dead but that is far from true. The reality is that in every city there are many TV stations and radio stations but only one newspaper. It is a very efficient buy, and almost 100 percent of newspaper readers are voters. With them, you are reaching the people who need to reach.”

Then I described a very specific series of ads. I drew out three examples, showing the size ads and what to say. I explained how often to run the ads, where to place them in the paper, and the repetitive format of the ads. Then I handed him a list of newspapers to run the ads in. He followed my advice to the T.

When we sat down and discussed the campaign, Mike was at 2 percent in the polls. Over the next eight weeks, the only media he bought were those newspaper ads. Not a penny on radio or TV. But eight weeks later, he was at 17 percent in the polls and near the top of the pack of candidates.

The poll encouraged donors and in the final weeks of the campaign, he was able to raise the money he needed to buy the TV and direct mail necessary to finish out the campaign. On election day, he finished first among the Republican candidates and faced Cleo Fields in the runoff. At that moment, the election was all but over.

During his time as governor, Mike Foster fulfilled his duties with honesty and integrity. He answered his own phone and returned calls. If you dropped by his home in Franklin, he personally answered the door. He never sought personal, financial or political gain. Rather, he was a true public servant. A man of the people. Pro-life. Conservative. He cared about the little man. He was truly the Peoples’ Governor!

Roar of Death Valley Became a Whimper Under One-Man Rule of John Bel Edwards

Woody Jenkins
Editor

BATON ROUGE — If one man can kill a state, the Fool Governor, John Bel Edwards, is well on his way.

Through his draconian, illegal orders, he stopped people from shaking hands, hugging people's necks, going to their favorite coffee shop or restaurant without a hated mask, opening their businesses, going to work, going to church, or going to a concert or a sporting event.

He even managed to stop people from going to the hospital to take care of their loved ones or holding a decent funeral for their mama. There is really no end to how far he will go to save us from ourselves with his nanny state. But two Saturdays ago, all his bizarre and illegal policies took tangible form for the world to see — in Death Valley, the place where opponents' dreams go to die.

How ironic that we witnessed the dreams of our whole state dying before our eyes. The roar of the crowd in "Death Valley" or "Deaf Valley" is a powerful symbol of our state and a powerful weapon for our team.

Death Valley is — or was — one of the three or four most difficult places in America for an opponent to play. No one has been able to silence that crowd, including Bear

LSU TIGER STADIUM as it used to be, before John Bel Edwards turned it into a caricature of itself. More changes are coming — renaming building and perhaps the mascot.

Bryant and Nick Saban of Alabama.

However, now someone has done it — one of our own. Our governor!

It is unthinkable that one man's maniacal obsession with his own power could silence Tiger Stadium, but he did it!

25 percent capacity?
No tailgating?
Masks required?
Are you kidding?
People are adults! You're not our mama!

There was no "roar" on the campus of LSU. In fact, the campus was "eerily silent," as the mask-loving Baton Rouge Advocate described it!

There were none of the hard fought victories that often come in the fourth quarter, because fans "roared" and chanted to cheer the Tigers on! All that was missing.

Yes, governor, you supported taking down the honored name of Gen. Troy Middleton from the LSU Library, dishonoring the memory of one of our nation's great heroes of World War II.

And, yes, you will support the radical left's renaming 10 or 15 of our buildings on the LSU campus

— Allen Hall, Boyd Hall, Nicholson Hall, and many others. You want to re-fight the Civil War.

Governor, it's all about your politics, which trumps your common sense and the history of our school.

You were elected governor, not dictator.

No one elected you to change the culture, the history, or the customs of this state.

Without Tiger Stadium, LSU is just another SEC school, not really special.

At every turn, governor, you take the joy out of life!

Imagine the Fighting Tigers coming out onto the field Saturday to a nearly empty stadium without the roar of the fans. That's what happened in the first game of the season!

But, of course, they won't be the Fighting Tigers much longer, will they, governor?

After all, the LSU mascot was named after the famous Fighting Tigers who fought for Louisiana and the South in the Civil War!

The LSU Board of Supervisors, — your board, because you appointed every member — dishonored Gen. Middleton and they are about to dishonor many other heroes of the university.

Certainly, your attention will turn to the Fighting Tigers and you will take down the LSU mascot. A fitting end to your political career.
